Dog and Pony Show at Clothier Country Home in Wynnewood Today—Nancy Wynne Tells of Interesting Relationships, Other Matters Discussed

WERENT you delighted for the sake of the Polyclinic and the Pony Show, that today is so beautiful? It was simply ideal out at Wynnewood.

War savings stamps were among the prizes which were offered for the pony and dog show.

The two biggest features are the Pony Show, which, you know, the original form in which the affair started; and the Dog Show, which is bigger and better this year than ever before. Mrs. Victor C. Mather is directing the Pony Show and Mariana W. Gowen heads the Dog Show committee.

Considerably more than one hundred dogs were shown in the covered ring. One of them was a Brussels Griffon, which was brought over from Belgium by an officer of the medical reserve. This dog, descended from a proud line of Belgian champions, is very appropriately named "Refugee." He was so tiny and cunning every one was crazy over him. Several of the special prizes for the Dog Show were war savings stamps. Scores of dog fanciers in this city and along the Main Line and in Chestnut Hill entered their pets.

Captain Allison St. Clair Campbell, of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, was one of the judges at the Pony Show, appearing in his full uniform, including kilt, David B. Sharp and George Willing, Jr., were the other judges. Mrs. Mather, Mrs. Henry Disston and Mrs. Charles Randolph Snowden were the ring committee.

Cups were presented by Mrs. William W. Porter, Mrs. George H. Earle, Jr., Mrs. William J. Clothier, Mrs. William A. Lieber, Mrs. Herbert L. Clark, Mrs. Lawrence D. Bezge, Mrs. Louis Parsons, Mrs. Henry Disston, Mrs. Edward Crozer, Charles E. Mather, Ensign George H. Earle, 3d, Mrs. Frederick W. Schmidt and Mrs. Victor C. Mather.

Hooverized meals, a midway, doll show, movies, a baby show and many other attractions filled up one's time. For the first time the affair is to be continued at night. Drills by Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts were among the events of the afternoon, and war talks will be included in the night attractions, when admission to the grounds will be without charge.

Mrs. Clothier, looking just as pretty as a picture, was flitting about here and there, encouraging, aiding and frightening each undertaking, each booth and each side with her winning smile and charming presence. She certainly is pretty, and it's quite true to say that the success of this annual affair is greatly due to the charming personality of the hostess herself.

IT IS interesting to hear of the engagement of Marie Le Fevre to Major William Bedford Hurley, U. S. A. The name takes old Philadelphians back many, many years, for Mrs. Le Fevre, the mother of Marie, was the daughter of Madame Sauvan, who lived for many years on South Ninth street below Pine with her sister, Miss Zenaida Pintard, and her brothers, Mr. Alexis and Mr. Emil Pintard. Madame Sauvan had a superb contralto voice, and when Jennie Lind sang in this city Madame Sauvan sang with her in several duets.

Her daughter, Mrs. Emil Le Fevre, who was Jennie Sauvan, inherited the rich voice, though she never was as famous as her mother. She was a soloist for a number of years in the old Church of St. John the Evangelist, on Thirteenth near Chestnut street.

The Le Fevres lived in Philadelphia for some years after their marriage, and moved but a few years ago to Boston. They had only one daughter, Marie, whose engagement they announced yesterday.

There is music on all sides of that family, Madame Sauvan's other daughter, Marie, married a Mr. Shaw, whose sister was the wife of the late Mr. Siegfried Behrens, that well-remembered musician who was associated with the Academy of Music for many years and who had much to do with the early training of Henri Scott, the Metropolitan basso. The Behrens Opera Company was named for the distinguished old gentleman, who for a number of years was their leader, and who taught many of our present-day singers. There are living today some who remember Madame Sauvan's voice, though she died at an advanced age some ten or twelve years ago.

IT'S astonishing what young brides there are these days! There's Margaret Smith, today barely eighteen, and Ethel Huhn, who is to be married in a month, just eighteen this month. I really think they are about the youngest I've heard of since Gladys Earle married Gilbert Mather last August. She was not eighteen then, just a little over seventeen.

Ethel's age goes with the years. In 1913 she was thirteen, and had the loveliest party for her little friends in Paris. I remember hearing at the time that she had bracelets made of gold with 13 in precious stones set in, and gave them to the girls who lunched with her that day. That was before the war began, when she was living in Paris.

I understand they have not decided whether the wedding will take place in town or in the country as yet, but there's plenty of time. It's more than a month off, you know. Ethel has certainly asked an attractive bunch of bridesmaids to lead her to matrimony, hasn't she?

ONCE in a while a rare bit in the way of a story from the camps comes to me. No one ever tells it and you never can trace it, but you know it to be true. And this little tale is, if you want to hear it.

Two men who I know got into a rather heated discussion at one of our nearby camps; indeed so heated did it become that, as is the way with young men, they proceeded to get into the first position for a fight. An officer seeing them immediately sent them to the guardhouse, and a few moments they were called to appear before the superior officer, and they stood at each other as they stood before me. All you and he fortunately knew the boys were really good friends, but were a bit on their nerves. So what do you think his sentence was? The first one had to wash a window on the outside and the second had to wash that same window on the inside. And there were those two men who half an hour before had been mad enough to hurt one another washing away and looking through the glass at each other. And the first thing you knew there they were laughing to kill themselves. Their sense of humor had won out, as the officer knew it would, and they finished the window the best of friends.

The marriage of Mrs. Harriet Rogers Galloney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Mellon Rogers, of Devon, and Mr. Samuel Bell, Jr., will take place at 7 o'clock this evening in old St. David's Church, Radnor. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. James H. Lamb, rector of the church, only the immediate family and a few intimate friends will be present. Mrs. Galloney will be attended by her cousin, Miss Gilbert, of Harshbarger, as matron of honor, and her sister, Mrs. J. E. Cope Morton. The best man will be Mr. James Bell, of Indianapolis, Ind., a cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride will wear a gown of white lace with pink chiffon, with a large plume hat of natural straw trimmed with spring flowers. A tulle scarf of pale pink, fastened at the back of the hat, will be draped over the shoulders. She will carry a bouquet of white orchids. Miss Gilbert will wear white lace net over champagne-colored silk, with a pink straw hat trimmed with chiffon to match the dress decorated with sprays of pink flowers. The wedding will take place in the early part of October.

QUEEN MARY SENDS MESSAGE TO RELIEF FUND

Mrs. Robert Strawbridge Has Letter From Lady Dawson Expressing Gratitude

Queen Mary of Great Britain has sent a special message of appreciation to Mrs. Robert Strawbridge, chairman of the British American war relief fund of the Emergency Aid.

The letter, which was received yesterday, came from Lady Dawson, honorable secretary of Queen Victoria's Needlework Guild, London, and reads:

"I am so glad to tell you of the arrival of your five cases of lovely things, sent through Miss Hays, per S. S. Feniche. The Queen desires me to convey to you Her Majesty's deep gratitude and appreciation of all your work and help to Her Majesty's guild. All the things you have sent are most valuable and have gone off at once to our hospitals in France, where we are asked for so many things now. You can understand that with all this terrible fighting all our hospitals are full, and your beautiful gifts such a comfort to us when the cases arrive safely, and I note that you are sending us more beautiful donations, which I trust will arrive as safely as the last."

From January 1 to May 1, the British-American committee has shipped thirty cases for the American and eleven cases for the British wounded, but because of the great drive, surgical dressings are in tremendous demand, and the committee is heavily in need of funds to carry on the

MRS. HAROLD SANDS

Howard Wolfe was attended by her sister, Miss Katherine Wolfe, as maid of honor. The best man will be Sergeant David I. Sheldahl, U. S. A., a brother of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a gown of white georgette crepe over soft white satin, and a georgette cape over a gown of white silk. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley and pale pink sweet peas.

After a short wedding trip Lieutenant and Mrs. Sheldahl will live in North Carolina, where Lieutenant Sheldahl is stationed.

MENDILLO-COPE

The wedding of Miss Margaret W. Cope, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Cope, of 524 Philadelphia avenue, the bridegroom, formerly of Thiga, and the James S. Mendillo, formerly in the dental reserve, took place at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's father gave her in marriage, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stewart P. Keeling, rector of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, Wayne avenue and Harney street.

The bride wore a gown of white georgette crepe with white beads, draped over soft white satin. Her veil fell from a band of point lace, caught with orange blossoms. A shower of white orchids and sweet peas was carried. Miss Mendillo, dressed in a gown of white, carried a bouquet of white chiffon, draped over pink silk, and carried a shower of pink roses.

Ensign John Menzies, U. S. N., was the bridegroom's best man. A reception followed the ceremony. Doctor Mendillo and his bride left on an extended trip and will be at home after June 1 in New Haven, Conn.

MAZE-KENNEDY

The marriage of Mrs. Mabel D. Kennedy, of 2812 Diamond street, to Mr. Frank S. Maze, of 718 West Lehigh avenue, took place on Friday evening at the home of the Rev. J. G. Hickerton, of the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, Diamond and Twentieth streets, and was followed by a reception at the Adolphus Hotel. The bride wore a gown of taupe duchesse satin with a braid hat to match, and a corsage bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. She was attended by georgette crepe draped over gray satin, a braid hat of the same shade and a corsage bouquet of lavender sweet peas.

Mr. Earl J. Godwin was the bridegroom's best man. Mr. and Mrs. Maze, upon their return from their wedding journey, will be at home at 2812 Diamond street.

FOOTLIGHT ART IN ITS GLORY TONIGHT

Stars Will Shine for Red Cross in "Out There" at Metropolitan

Artistry and patriotism will be ideally balanced in the production of "Out There," which will be given for the benefit of the Red Cross at the Metropolitan Opera House tonight. The leaders of the American stage have marshaled their talents and summoned their choicest gifts for the exploitation of every ounce of value in J. Hartley Manners' admirable war play.

It has been estimated that the regular yearly salaries of these dazzling stars would aggregate $100,000. Under the present exceptional circumstances, however, these actors among them the foremost in the land—will accept not a penny for their services. All their nuggets of histrionism are freely contributed to the Red Cross, which will be the recipient of the total proceeds of the brief tour of the play, embracing the principal cities east of the Mississippi and extending as far West as St. Louis.

These are the players involved: George Arliss, George M. Coban, James K. Hackett, Burr McIntosh, Chauncey Gicott, O. P. Heggie, James T. Powers, George MacFarlane, H. B. Warner, Laurette Taylor, Julia Arthur, Perry Mason, Mrs. Fiske and Herb Wason. Mrs. Fiske will deliver a patriotic address. Eleanor Clarendon, formerly of the Hammerstein opera house, will lead the audience in singing the "Star Spangled Banner" and Laurette Taylor will be seen in her original role of the London waif, who seeks hospital service at the front as an earnest of her passionate desire to do something.

Such an assemblage of footlight luminaries in a single performance is unprecedented in Philadelphia stage history. The public recognition of this fact has already been manifested. The seat sale indicates that even the magnitude of the theatrical audience at the Metropolitan has been hailed as one of the most significant dramatic treatments of the war theme.

NEW "STATE OF LIBERTY" BINDS ARMY WITH FRANCE

Baker's Gift From the Ecole Polytechnique Is Placed in West Point's Library

Washington, May 15.—A statuette presented to Secretary Baker by the Ecole Polytechnique, a French military school, on his visit to that institution April 27, has been placed in the library at the United States Military Academy at West Point. Colonel Tillman, superintendent of the Military Academy, notifying Secretary Baker today, said the following formal acknowledgment was prepared by a committee of cadets for transmission to France:

"Fighting side by side with the sons of Liberty, the French Republic is assured under the leadership of one of the greatest of your graduates, we shall become truly your brothers in arms and your associates in the defense of our common ideals to which our united efforts are dedicated. The beautiful symbol of the spirit of Liberty, the Ecole Polytechnique, which we have received through our Secretary of War will ever serve as a source of inspiration, as a constant reminder of the high ideals and the perfect spirit which are the foundation of our institutions. It will stand as a permanent monument to the enduring friendship of the Ecole Polytechnique and the United States Military Academy, of the French army and the American army, of France and America."

GIVES CHILDREN MAY PARTY

Mothers' Club Entertains Youngsters at Germantown Home

The children had their first yesterday afternoon when the Philadelphia Mothers' Club, of which Mrs. Oliver P. Waite is president, gave them a May party in the garden of the residence of Mrs. John R. Minehart, 1821 Germantown avenue.

The little guests were the sons and daughters of the members of the club. Races, ring games, swinging, hide and seek were the order of the afternoon.

Philadelphian Entertained

Miss Eleanor Ruse, of Brandywine, Md., entertained on Saturday night for Miss Carol Craig, of this city, at a dinner, followed by a dance in the ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, Washington. Among the guests were Colonel and Mrs. C. D. Hartman, Miss Millicent McKee, of Baltimore; Miss Agnes Carter, of Washington; Miss Carol Craig, of this city; Miss Evelyn, of New York; Captain H. J. Kimball, now stationed at Camp Dix; Captain H. Cadwell, now stationed at Camp Dix; Lieutenant D. C. R. L. Sylvester, of Washington, and Dr. R. L. Sylvester, of Washington. Additional guests joined the party for the dance.

Suzanne Silvercruys in West

No one in this city has forgotten Miss Suzanne Silvercruys, the little Belgian girl who spoke so appealingly on behalf of her "little Belgium." It is interesting to know that another city is to hear her this week. She will speak today at a luncheon at the Hamilton Club, in the evening at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, and on Saturday afternoon at the Blackstone, in Chicago, where she is to be the guest of Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick.
